These activities need to be done during and within the current (and/ or any subsequent) lockdown period/ s only and acceptable proofs of activities have to be submitted, along with the Evaluation Sheet of Special Activities, latest within seven days after the lockdown is lifted.

Online publishing shall include publishing the material in any social media site as well.

Maximum marks that will be credited in your name from special lock-down period activities, across years, is 25 only.

Some of the activities, like learning any foreign languages, will come with its own certification.

For some other activities that require publishing, proof of publishing has to be submitted.

For the activities, like cooking & gardening, it is clearly mentioned that video documentation is required.

For the activity 'Helping parents and family members in household work/matters', since they are essentially being carried out from home during the lock down period, logically, a letter from the parent/ guardian will be enough for the student to claim MAR points.
